REMARKABLE MEN.

The Two Giants and a Dwarf on Exhibition in London.

From the London Times.

Three of the most remarkable men of the century are now on exhibition in London at the Royal Aquarium—the giant Chang, a tea merchant of Peking; Brustad, a tall Norwegian, and Che-mah, described as the Chinese dwarf, the smallest man in the world. Chang is the tallest giant in existence, stands eight feet two inches, and is highly educated, speaking five different languages, including English, which he speaks very well but with the well-known sing-song of the Chinaman. He is eight feet high without his boots; he measures sixty inches around the chest, weighs 26 stone, has a span of eight feet with his outstretched arms, and signs his name without an effort upon a sign post ten feet six inches high. Chang is thirty-three years of age, and it is about fifteen years since he was in England. After five years' residence in the Celestial Empire he returned to Europe for the Paris Exposition, and has since visited Vienna (where the Emperor gave him a ring he proudly exhibits, marked with the imperial eagles and the initials of Francis Joseph), Berlin and Hamburg. Since his last residence in this country Chang has grown six inches. He has a benevolent Mongolian face, a courtly manner, and wears a richly embroidered dress worked for him by his sister, who is, like the rest of the family, of only ordinary stature.

Next to Chang, and next by no long intervals, stands Brustad, about 7 feet 9 inches high, very muscular, very broad backed, having a great girth of chest as Chang, and a wider span in proportion to his height. He has a low forehead, but speaks English fairly well. Brustad has also a ring which he greatly delights in exhibiting. He presented it to himself out of the profits, it is supposed, gained by being shown. It is 4½ ounces in weight, and a penny goes easily through it. To grasp his mighty hand in greeting is like shaking hands with an oak tree. His weight is 28 stone greater than Chang's, for his bones are more massive. His age is 35.

Che-mah, the dwarf, gives his age as 42, sings a Chinese elegy, describes himself with much fluency and variety, and, as his height is only 25 inches, appears to be what he is described, the smallest man in the world. It is common for exhibited dwarfs to be over three feet high. Sir Geoffrey Hudson, the dwarf whom readers of Sir Walter Scott will best remember, measured 3 feet 9 inches when he had attained his full stature.

FOR PRESIDENT,
 JAMES A. GARFIELD, OF OHIO;
 FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
 CHESTER A. ARTHUR,
 OF NEW YORK.
 CLEARED SEVEN YEARS AGO.

From the New York Tribune of January 15, 1873.

We take great pleasure in saying that the testimony seems to exculpate General Garfield completely from any blame in the Credit Mobilier scandal. This result may well be made a subject of congratulation by the country at large. General Garfield is one of the most valuable members of the House, and has been looked to with most regard by earnest friends of reform. That such a man should be involved in such a scandal is bad enough; that he should come out with skirts clean is what his friends expected and what the country had a right to demand.

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT.

The proceedings at the meeting of the creditors of the Reno Savings Bank last night had considerable significance as expressing the general sentiment towards the Bank management. The resolutions passed charge gross negligence upon the entire management, fraud and robbery upon the Manager, Cashier, and Vice-President. These are grave accusations, and they reflect the popular sentiment in this community. L. L. Crockett, the State Treasurer of Nevada, was last night, by a meeting composed of respectable men and women, denounced as a thief. It is true that an assemblage of creditors, smarting under their losses, is often an unjust and unreasonable body, and when excited by inflammatory speeches, is not apt to be judicial in its conclusions. But, making every allowance for the natural tendency to go to extremes in such cases, the verdict of that meeting is not to be lightly passed over. The resolutions were passed without a dissenting voice. If there were reasonable grounds for such an expression of opinion, there should be legal grounds for a criminal action against the offenders. The District Attorney, John Bowman, and his associate, Judge Cossitt, attended the meeting. Both tacitly approved of the proceedings. Judge Cossitt expressed his concurrence. Consistency appears to demand that the District Attorney should immediately take some action in the matter. If theft has been committed, as charged, it should be punished. If the parties accused are not guilty, their innocence will be made to appear in a fair trial before a competent court. There are probably men living who have a greater sense of propriety than L. L. Crockett. But it is probable that Mr. Crockett will see the impropriety of a man whom a whole community stigmatizes as a robber, retaining the office of State Treasurer for a day. Decency seems to demand of Mr. Crockett that he resign the office of Treasurer, pending an investigation of the charges against him.

SHALL WE TAKE IN A PARTNER?

The Silver State thus advocates the consolidation of Nevada and Utah in order to prevent the bankruptcy of this State: "It is becoming tolerably evident to those who give the subject a little thought, that Nevada cannot maintain its expensive State Government many years, unless immense bonanzas are discovered in the Comstock or some other mining section of the State, without increasing the State rate of taxation to at least three times what it is at present. The population of the State is not increasing proportionately with that of other new States, and the assessable property will be less this year than it was last year. There will also be a material reduction in the revenue from the net proceeds of the mines, as the bullion product of the Comstock is steadily falling off. It is useless to attempt to disguise the too apparent fact that the outlook of the State is gloomy, and that something must be done, and that soon, to relieve the tax-payers from the burden of a State Government. As there is no precedent for disincorporating a State Government and obliterating a star from the galaxy of the Union, the only hope for Nevada is the annexation of Utah, of which it was originally a part. This would give the State a population of about 200,000, and entitle it to two members of Congress. It would make a prosperous State, which could be maintained without excessive taxation. The only objection is polygamy, but that could be abolished before the Union is consummated."

POLAND ON GARFIELD.

The Chairman of the Credit Mobilier Committee Pays a High Tribute to Garfield—Judge Poland Never Doubted General Garfield's Integrity.

From his Letter to the Vermont Republican Convention.

I only desire to have an opportunity to express to the convention and to Republicans everywhere my entire approval of the nominations made at Chicago. Probably no man in Vermont knows General Garfield more intimately than myself. He was in Congress during the whole of my ten-years' service, and for eight years we stood together in the House, and ever on terms of friendship and intimacy.

OF HIS EMINENT ABILITY, power in debate and untiring devotion to public service I need not speak. His long service and leading position in Congress have made him known to all the people of the country who take any interest in public affairs. But our political opponents affect to question his personal integrity and

and to base their accusations upon the evidence taken before, and report of a committee of Congress, of which I was chairman, known as the Credit Mobilier Committee. Now I desire to say to the Convention, and to all who may feel an interest in my opinion of General Garfield, that nothing which appeared before the committee, or which appears in their report, or any other matter or thing which ever came to my knowledge in regard to him, ever led me to doubt his personal integrity. I believe him to be a THOROUGHLY UPRIGHT AND HONEST MAN, and one who would be so under all circumstances and against any temptation. The use that is being made of my name and the report of the committee which was drawn by me, in my opinion, makes it proper for me to express my personal judgment as to the character of the man.

Sam Davis, of the Carson Appeal, is not likely to take a place on the Record-Union. He was married last Monday in Carson to Mrs. Mighela, the owner of the Appeal. The couple have the GAZETTE's warm congratulations.

Impure Breath. Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inextinguishable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, FRAGRANT SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. JOTTINGS.

— Mr. Wise of the I. X. L. store lost a Masonic pin set with stones. The finder will be rewarded on its return.

— George Simpson has removed to Buckley's old stand. He makes a fine display of fruit and vegetables to-day.

— Those interested in the gymnasium project will meet at the Wine House to-morrow evening at nine o'clock sharp.

— Dr. Hogan now has some alfalfa on exhibition at Chase & Thyes' which exceeds in length by several feet that James Sullivan ever raised.

— The Trustees of the Agricultural Society are waiting for the return of M. C. Lake before they hold a meeting to decide upon changing the date of the fair.

— Sol. Levy has a new stock of ladies' hats. They will be sold at clearance prices. His new goods embrace a great variety of things of interest to the ladies.

— In illustration of the cunning of grasshoppers a rancher says that when they have a wide ditch to cross, and cannot fly, the insects bite off blades of grass, carry them to the water, use them as rafts, and paddle across with their hind legs.

The Schooling Principle.

The Silver State says: "Jerry Schooling, late Democratic State Treasurer of Nevada, was in San Francisco one time with thousands of dollars of State money in his possession, but not a dollar of his own in his pockets. Rather than use the money belonging to the State, he borrowed money to pay his way home. His successor does not believe in scrupulous exactness, or in the schooling principle of not using the public funds for private purposes. On the contrary, according to his own admissions, he deposited State funds in the Reno Savings Bank, in which he was interested, to enable the bank to pay dividends of three per cent. per month on money belonging to the people."

The Books of the Savings Bank.

In the District Court this morning, in the several suits against the Reno Savings Bank, Judge King denied the motion of the defendants, asking for a release of the attachment on the bank's books of account. The Court held that the proper action had not been brought, and intimated that a suit of replevin would be the correct procedure. The Sheriff was instructed to keep the books in his custody, and to permit no examination of them except by the defendants, who have the right of access to them for the purpose of making out a statement. The first attachment put on the books is in the name of Jerry Schooling. There are a good many attachments of a later date.

Fatal Shooting at Candelaria.

CANDELARIA, July 5th.

Editor Gazette: A shooting affray occurred here on the street last evening, resulting in the death of one of the combatants. Ben Ferris, a miner, was shot by Perry Plane, a pimp, and died four hours afterward. Eleven shots were fired. The two men met on the street in front of Ebbitt's saloon, and after some words, both pulled their pistols and commenced firing. Ferris is said to have shot first. Perry was shot once in the ribs, the ball glancing off and doing only slight injury. Perry has been arrested, and is now locked up. There is much talk of lynching.

Card of Thanks.

The Committee of Arrangements for the picnic held at the Riverside Grounds, on the Fifth of July, in behalf of the members of the W. T. U. desire to express their sincere thanks to all who generously contributed their money, to those who kindly took part in the exercises of the day, and to the citizens of Reno generally.

A Sunday Ordinance.

The Board of County Commissioners passed a Sunday ordinance this morning. All places of business are required to be closed on Sunday, except vegetable and meat markets, which are allowed to be open until 10 A. M., and excepting hotels, restaurants, livery stables and saloons. For barber shops a special ordinance was passed two months ago.

CRUEL CREDITORS

OF THE RENO SAVINGS BANK.

CHARGE THE VICE-PRESIDENT, THE MANAGER, AND THE CASHIER WITH ROBBERY AND FRAUD.

Resolutions Passed at the Meeting Last Night—A Scathing Speech From H. H. Beck—A Committee of Three Appointed to Act For the Creditors.

In response to the call for a meeting of creditors of the Reno Savings Bank the Reform Club hall was filled with people last evening. About 8 o'clock J. K. Everett was called to the chair and P. B. Comstock elected Secretary. Mr. Beck took the floor and submitted the following resolutions:

Whereas: The Reno Savings Bank had long been regarded as a secure and reliable place of deposit, and being so regarded, all classes of people were induced to make it the custodian of their funds for safe-keeping, and

Whereas: The managers of said bank, after enjoying the good will and patronage of the people of Reno and the surrounding country for a term of years, did on the 24th day of June last past, fail to keep their promises and agreements with the patrons and creditors, but then and there on said day wilfully and wrongfully, and without any apparent regard for their obligations to the people and the law, and without respect for common decency, and at an unusual hour for the vault and safe of the bank to be open, proceed in a clandestine manner to remove the money and valuable securities from the bank and appropriate them to their own use:

THEREFORE RESOLVED—1st, That it is the sense of this meeting that the entire management, including the President and the Directors, in view of the apparent loose manner in which the affairs of the bank were conducted, is guilty of gross negligence.

2nd, That the acts of the manager, cashier and vice-president in removing from the bank its money and valuable securities, as above indicated, can only be regarded as fraud and robbery, and should be denounced by all law-abiding citizens.

3d, That a committee of three be appointed by the creditors present, whose duty it shall be to take such action as will result in the appointment of a receiver by the District Court, whose duties, as prescribed by law, shall be to take charge of the assets of the bank for the benefit of all its creditors.

4th, That we as citizens, as well as creditors, earnestly hope and pray that those who have been guilty of an infraction of the law, will be duly dealt with, to the end that the honor of an outraged community may be vindicated.

SPEECH OF H. H. BECK.

Mr. Beck spoke to these resolutions at considerable length. He read from a local paper the advertisement which the bank had kept standing and characterized it as the invitation of the spider to the fly. The speaker reviewed the nature of the business done by the Savings Bank, referring to it as the custodian of funds belonging to widows and orphans, hard-working laboring men, and even money for the care of the insane. He then read an extract from the Reno Journal of the 3rd inst. which was published in explanation of Mr. Crockett's abstraction of funds from the bank in small hours of the night. The extract closed with the word "Correct." The speaker made some sarcastic allusions to the little whitewash brush of the Journal, and denounced the attempt to cover up Crockett's crooked tracks in that manner. "What," he asked, "did it cost Crockett to save that half of one cent Crockett to the State? His honor." He pictured Crockett on his midnight ride from Carson to Reno, exclaiming at every jump:

MY HONOR! MY MONEY!

His object was to reach into the bank vault up to his elbows and fitch out money that did not belong to him. He did as a thief would. Can any man with any respect for decency say that conduct is "correct?" Mr. Beck then read another extract from the Journal: "Universal sympathy is felt for Mr. Kinkead." He denied that this community felt any sympathy for Mr. Kinkead, "the man who assisted in robbing the widows and orphans, (applause) the man who called his sisters and his cousins and his aunts and his uncles to come in and share the funds that they fished from the institution."

BAIDENBERRY'S RIDE TO CARSON

was poetically described by the speaker. He declared that Sheridan's ride was nothing to it. Sheridan rode only 30 miles while Baidenberry went 30 over a dangerous road in the darkness of night, where he had never been before. "See him, driving like a Jehu, over hill and mountain, now plunging down into the blackness of some deep canyon and anon skirting the edge of a yawning precipice, yet ever on and on in a mad gallop to bear the news to that uncle thirty miles away. Fancy the feelings of that young man riding recklessly on through the danger and the dark, giving a stroke of the whip for every other jump, and exclaiming: 'My uncle, Oh my uncle.'"

THE RIDE BACK FROM CARSON

with two fresh horses and the uncle was vividly portrayed. "On they swept, down through the narrow mountain gorges, climbing the steep grades with the speed of a locomotive, rushing around sharp curves where a single misstep would have plunged them into eternity, flying on through the valleys, rattling over the bridges, galloping up hill and down dale, and that uncle thinking of nothing, saying nothing but 'My money, Oh my money.' Fancy him, when at last he reached Reno and the bank to find that another uncle had got his fins in before him and got away with the swag, amounting to $14,000. The silver being heavy, was left for the other side of the family."

STORIES IN CIRCULATION

were next referred to by the speaker. He told of one that he had heard concerning Kinkead. The manager was reported as having said: "Batch, has gone for his uncle, and I'll be damned if I don't look after my own." "He did get his uncle in there, and did fitch out the money belonging to you depositors. If you get ten cents on the dollar you'll do well." Mr. Beck characterized as a lie the Vice-President's statement that he had only got $1,084 in silver that night. Several of the men from the bank had the impudence to stop citizens on the street and take them to task for speaking of their misdoings, and for giving information to the GAZETTE. The speaker said he would like to write in big letters on the wall what Sheriff Walker said in reply to them: "To hell with you!" The same man took the proprietor of the Gazette to task for what he had said in that paper about the business. Mr. Beck complimented the Gazette for the course it had pursued in regard to the bank trouble. His recommendation was to "keep on and give it to them." "The GAZETTE is on the right course, but is not half hard enough. The District Attorney should prosecute these men. They should be tried, convicted, and condemned." The bad notoriety of savings banks was next touched upon, and several instances of rascally failures were cited. Mr. Beck spoke of a number of cases of particular hardship resulting from the failure of the Reno Savings Bank. One case is that of an old man named Waddell, living in Washoe valley, who is sick for six months in the year. He had saved up $1,000, and it was all in the bank. Mrs. Rogers, a washerwoman, had $300 on deposit. Old Mr. Cobb and wife, had their all deposited in the bank. There was little Caddie Smart, a school teacher at Ophir, who had $500 in the bank. The speaker gave an account of the Crocker family at Glendale. Mr. Crocker came here in early days, and after years of hard work accumulated an independence, and got his sisters to live with him. He died, and when his estate came to be administered something was heard about a mortgage which he had given on his ranch. The appraisers went to the bank, where the document had been placed, and asked about it. The manager said that the mortgage was merely nominal, executed for a certain purpose, and simply left there for safe keeping; that it was not to be counted in appraising the estate. This mortgage, for which not a cent of consideration had ever been given, it was known had been hypothecated in Virginia city by the bank, and Mr. Crocker's only surviving sister is left penniless.

GUILTY OF FILCHING MONEY

"THIS DAMNABLE INSTITUTION" had thus taken advantage of the trust put in it by a dead man to defraud a woman. It has not hesitated to take money from the clergyman or the widow. What kind of hearts can these men have who will do such things? I would climb the mountains, yea, unto the highest peak, to ask God to curse such respectability as theirs." John Dolman, an old man living near the round house, had saved up $800 to educate his children. A few weeks ago he concluded to draw the money from the Reno Savings Bank. He went there and asked for it. "What in hell do you want it for," asked the manager. The old man insisted on having it, and the money was chucked to him with the remark: "There, take your damned old hoard." A widow went to the bank shortly before the suspension and asked for $490 she had there. She was refused. She went again with a business man and got the money. The manager explained his previous refusal by saying that he thought "she would lend it to some one who would never pay it." Returning again to the subject of

CROCKETT'S CROOKEDNESS.

The speaker remarked: "Whenever you find a public official going out of his way to save the State some trifling expense, you can bet he's a scoundrel. (Applause) And don't you forget it. (Loud and prolonged cheering.) Crockett's love for the State is like a spider's love for a fly." The conduct of Crockett and the manager was likened to that of the officers on a sinking ship who should take the only life boat, and pull away from the ship, leaving the passengers to their fate. When the Bank was a financial wreck, drifting on a lee shore, the second in command suggested to the master that they call the Old Man. The answer was: "No, we won't say a damned word to the old man. Go on to your uncle." "These men," said the speaker, "have disregarded all law and all decency. The community can so punish them that they would prefer death. Show them by your acts and demeanor that you have the utmost contempt for them and that you know they are guilty." Mr. Beck said that if the Directors have been originally negligent they should be punished. He thought several of them were guilty of any criminality, and were ignorant of the affairs of the Bank. He feared that the directors cannot be made responsible to the depositors.

DISCUSSING THE RESOLUTIONS.

Judge Marshall expressed his approval of the resolutions before the meeting, and said that he represented parties having a large interest. He proposed that all present who had claims against the Bank should go forward and give the Secretary a memorandum of the same, in order that the meeting might know just what its strength was and be able to go to work intelligently. He believed that the managers and officers of the Bank are liable and can be held liable. There is a chance to rescue what is due. (Applause.)

T. F. Laycock suggested an amendment to the resolutions, instructing the committee to employ counsel to prosecute the claims. He heartily approved of the resolutions.

Judge Marshall said that the committee would have no right to examine the books of the Bank. He moved that the resolutions concerning the appointment of a committee be stricken out. The motion was seconded.

Judge Cassitt said the resolutions introduced by Beck provided for the only feasible way of getting at the books. He said that if there existed ground for a criminal prosecution of the Bank's officers the District Attorney would do his best to bring them to justice. The Judge endorsed the resolutions.

Mr. Boardman said he represented considerable interests, aggregating between $30,000 and $35,000. He concurred in the view of his learned brother Cassitt. Let the committee be appointed and let each creditor present his claim to the committee. He endorsed every word of Mr. Beck's. "Beck told all he knew but didn't tell all that could be told. A committee could go to the management and insist upon a showing. If the conduct of the manager and the Vice-President is not embezzlement there is a defect in the Government. The committee must be appointed to-night. The people who robbed the bank are hanging around the doors of the court house to get the books as soon as Court opens in the morning." He had no faith in Crockett. Every man in the community is interested in pushing the investigation.

Mr. Beck said that the committee would expect every attorney in the place to help. Judge Cassitt, interrupting: "We won't charge a cent." (applause.)

Capt. Bragg favored the immediate appointment of the committee. It would take too much time to make out a list of claims during the meeting. He asked: "Has the District Judge power to appoint a receiver in the case?"

Judge Marshall—"No, unless legal proceedings call for it. It has not yet been ascertained that the Bank is insolvent in a legal sense."

Mr. Boardman said the lawyers thought a receiver would be appointed if the committee brought an action in the name of one of the creditors. Dr. Hogan said he would like to see J. K. Everett on the committee. A motion was then made, seconded, put and passed, making H. H. Beck chairman of the committee of three, with power to choose two other members.

T. F. Laycock moved a vote of thanks to the Reno GAZETTE for its manly stand in the matter of the Bank suspension, in contrast to the whitewashing done by the other local paper. The resolution passed unanimously.

Mr. Beck declining to choose the two committee men, a motion to reconsider was passed.

Major Mann moved that the chair have power to name two men to serve on the committee with Mr. Beck. The chair named Judges Marshall and Cassitt.

Judge Marshall offered to give the committee all the help he could, but declined to serve as a member of it. Judge Cassitt declined in favor of some business man.

E. C. McKinney was named by some one and the chair put him on the committee. He modestly declined, but his declination was unheeded. Jerry Schooling's name was then presented by Judge Cassitt. The chair made him the third committee. He was absent and had no chance to decline.

Motion to adjourn passed.

A Rattlesnake Biting in the Snow.

Chief Justice Porter, who has been counting the noses of the people of Goodwin township, tells the Plumas National the following remarkable tale: "About the 1st of June, while the snow was yet ten or twelve feet deep in Onion valley, a cow and calf belonging to Nat. Mullen were both bitten by a rattlesnake, and both died. The cow was skinned, and a dog belonging at the house refreshed himself with a meal from the carcass. He got to the door of the house, and there fell dead. The snow-bred rattlesnake must be poison all the way through."

Wrestling With a Cinnamon Bear.

Two Italians with their trained cinnamon bear drew a crowd on the street last evening. The bear seemed very intelligent and did a number of feats in balancing a pole, rolling over on his head, etc., with great ease. After the bear had been exercised in this manner for some time, the trainer offered to "wrestle with him like the devil for $2." This sum was quickly made up by the crowd. While the collection was being taken up a stranger pressed forward and said "I will get an Indian here that will throw your bear every time." The Italian had faith in his bear, and answered "bring along your Indian." The stranger departed for his Indian but did not return. After receiving his $2 the Italian grappled with the bear and some lively wrestling took place. The bear betrayed a disposition to sink his claws into the hide of his trainer. The trainer clearly appreciated the situation and would not permit the bear to entangle him in a close embrace. After about fifteen minutes of much exciting rolling and tumbling about, the exhibition terminated. This morning the Italians departed with their bear for Truckee.

The Heliotrope's Flash.

Word was sent to Reno last week that on Monday at 2:30 P. M. a heliotrope on Pah Rah would be directed so that its flash could be seen from the depot here. Pah Rah is the name of a mountain at Pyramid lake on which there is a surveying station. It is forty miles distant from here. At the hour named the heliotrope signal could be distinctly seen shining like a bright star. The heliotrope is a little mirror, so mounted that the reflection of the sun's rays can be directed with great exactness to long distances.
